

Blueprint for Sexual and Reproductive Health, Rights, and Justice

ReproBlueprint.org

The Blueprint for Sexual and Reproductive Health, Rights, and Justice is a proactive policy agenda to advance sexual and reproductive health in the United States and around the world. It is rooted in the fact that for people to be free and equal, they must have autonomy over their bodies. The nearly 80 endorsing organizations are committed to a future where those in power will support, not restrict, our individual sexual and reproductive health and rights, a time when a fully supportive Congress and Administration will work together to enact policies the Blueprint lays out. The Blueprint is our agenda for that future.

The Blueprint's Five Key Principles:

Principle 1: Ensure sexual and reproductive health care is accessible to all people.

Principle 2: Ensure discriminatory barriers in health care are eliminated.

Principle 3: Ensure research and innovation advance sexual and reproductive health, rights and justice now and in the future.

Principle 4: Ensure health, rights, justice and wellness for all communities.

Principle 5: Ensure judges and executive officials advance sexual and reproductive health, rights, and justice.

The Blueprint recognizes that sexual and reproductive health, rights, and justice intersect with numerous other issues, from gender and racial equity to economic justice to community safety to immigrants' rights to LGBTQ+ liberation. Indeed, individuals most impacted by public policy surrounding sexual and reproductive health and rights are those who have fewer resources and means to navigate systemic barriers. That's why the Blueprint is grounded in the belief that all individuals – no matter who they are, how much money they have, or where they are from – have the right to sexual and reproductive autonomy.

Guided by these five key principles, the Blueprint proposes many critical policy goals, including:

- Coverage of and access to comprehensive sexual and reproductive health care services and qualified providers at no or low cost and without exception for all people, including immigrants, incarcerated individuals, and young people under the age of 18.
- Full access to abortion that is best for an individual and their circumstances and comprehensive insurance coverage for care.
- Comprehensive pregnancy and maternal health care strategies that prioritize the health care needs of pregnant and birthing individuals.
- Strong non-discrimination protections for patients, including protections that ensure providers' religious or personal beliefs do not dictate patient care.
- Health care system transformation that prioritizes sexual and reproductive health care, including research and development in the field of reproductive health and scientific integrity and transparency in sexual and reproductive health care.
- Foreign policy that prioritizes sexual and reproductive health and rights.

The last two years have seen increasingly hostile attacks on reproductive autonomy and rights, creating a palpable urgency for action that demands a proactive and transformative agenda.

The Blueprint is the policy agenda that represents the future we want to live in. And it is drafted with the expectation that it will be implemented as soon as we have a fully supportive Congress and Administration. That future is coming, and we are ready.
